With so many books about the Holocaust to choose from, selecting the right resource for classroom use can be difficult. This list provides examples of books for the secondary school level, although it is not intended to be comprehensive. Suggested grade levels and resources for teachers are provided.

The Museum also offers a rubric that guides educators in selecting age-appropriate and historically accurate books. Educators are encouraged to evaluate the options in the bibliography with the rubric to assess how the source fits their classroom needs. The Museum’s Holocaust Literature Guide and foundational Timeline Activity can be used with any text as well.

The Diary of Mary Berg: Growing Up in the Warsaw Ghetto by Mary Berg

GRADES: 7-12; THEMES: Ghetto

In her diary, Jewish teenager Mary Berg (born Miriam Wattenberg) documented her daily life in the Warsaw ghetto. In July 1942, as the Germans began large-scale deportations from the ghetto, she described her family’s imprisonment in Pawiak prison. Due to Mary’s mother’s American birth, Nazi officials transferred the family to Vittel, a camp in occupied France. In spring 1944, Mary and her family were part of a prisoner exchange and arrived in the United States. Mary’s diary was published as a book in 1945.

The Diary of a Young Girl by Anne Frank

GRADES 6–12; THEMES: Netherlands, Hiding, Diaries, Rescue

Anne Frank began writing in her diary on her thirteenth birthday, shortly before going into hiding with her family in German-occupied Amsterdam in the Netherlands. Her diary details her family's daily life in hiding and her own personal feelings and reflections. There are multiple published versions of the diary. Otto Frank, Anne’s father, edited the first published version, while subsequent versions have added passages that Otto had originally deleted.

MEMOIRS

The Boy on the Wooden Box: How the Impossible Became Possible . . . on Schindler’s List
by Leon Leyson, Marilyn J. Harran, and Elisabeth B. Leyson
GRADES: 6-9; THEMES: Pre-war Jewish Life, Ghettos, Concentration Camp, Rescue, Choice, Complicity

In his memoir, Leon Leyson describes how he survived the Holocaust as a boy with the help of German businessman Oskar Schindler. Shortly before Leon’s 10th birthday, Nazi Germany invaded Poland. Young Leon experienced German authorities discriminating against and terrorizing Jews in Kraków, eventually forcing his family to move into a ghetto. Leon and his family struggled to survive and ultimately began to work for Oskar Schindler, who employed Jews in his factory and saved their lives.

All But My Life: A Memoir by Gerda Weissmann Klein
GRADES: 8-12; THEMES: Pre-war Jewish life, Ghettos, Concentration Camp, Liberation

In her memoir, Gerda Weissmann Klein describes her life in pre-war Bielsko, Poland, the German invasion of her country, and her experiences in a ghetto, multiple forced labor camps, and finally on a death march. She was liberated by the American Army and on the day of her liberation met Kurt Klein, a US soldier who had escaped Europe as a Jewish refugee in the 1930s. He eventually became her husband. The Academy Award-winning documentary, One Survivor Remembers, also documents Klein’s experiences.

The Girl in the Green Sweater: A Life in Holocaust's Shadow
by Krystyna Chiger and Daniel Paisner
GRADES: 7-12; THEMES: Ghettos, Rescue, Hiding, Choice, Resistance, Liberation

In her memoir, young Krystyna Chiger (now Kristine Keren) describes life in the Lwów ghetto in German-occupied Poland. As deportations began from the ghetto, Krystyna and her family escaped into the sewers under the city. She describes the horrible and dangerous conditions in which they lived for over a year and the aid provided to them by Polish sewer worker Leopold Socha, who risked his life to provide the family and others with food and supplies.

I Have Lived a Thousand Years: Growing Up in the Holocaust
by Livia Bitton-Jackson
GRADES: 8-12; THEMES: Pre-war Jewish life, Ghettos, Concentration Camp, Liberation

In her memoir, Livia Bitton-Jackson (then known as Elli Friedmann) describes her experiences as a young teenager during the Holocaust. When she was just 13, Hungarian authorities, collaborating with the Nazis, forced Jews in her community to move into a transit ghetto, stripping them of their property and their freedom. She recounts her subsequent deportation to Auschwitz, the dehumanization she and her mother experienced as prisoners in Nazi camps, and their liberation by the American military.

by Leo Bretholz and Michael Olesker

GRADES: 9-12; THEMES: Pre-war Jewish life, Kristallnacht, World War II, Immigration, Concentration Camp, Choice, Resistance

In his memoir, Leo Bretholz describes his experiences as a young adult during the Holocaust and his multiple escapes from Nazi authorities. Leo describes the German annexation of his home country of Austria in 1938, his escape to Luxembourg, and then to Belgium. After Germany invaded Belgium in 1940, he fled to France, where he was arrested and sent to an internment camp. In 1942, he jumped from a train that was headed to Auschwitz, assumed a false name, and joined a resistance movement in France.

Night by Elie Wiesel and Marion Wiesel (Translator)

GRADES: 9-12; THEMES: Pre-war Jewish life, Ghettos, Concentration Camp, Liberation

In his memoir, Elie Wiesel recounts his experiences as a young teenager in Sighet, in an area controlled by Hungary. After Germany occupied Hungary in March 1944, Elie and his family were sent to a transit ghetto and then deported to Auschwitz, where his mother and sister were murdered. Elie describes life and forced labor at Auschwitz. In January 1945, Elie and his father were sent on a death march and then transported by rail to the Buchenwald concentration camp, where his father died. The memoir ends with Elie’s liberation by the American Army.

GRADES: 7-10; THEMES: United States History, Sports, Nazi Rise to Power, Propaganda

This non-fiction book describes the US Olympic basketball team’s experiences at the 1936 Olympics, which were held in Berlin, Germany. With many photographs and images of artifacts, the book weaves together the history of basketball from its creation in 1891 and its debut as an Olympic sport in Berlin, where the Nazis used propaganda to manipulate international opinion. It includes the experiences of individual athletes during the Games, as well as German Jews impacted by Germany’s anti-Jewish laws. Includes photos, Who's Who of the 1936 Olympics, bibliography, and index.

White Bird: A Novel by R. J. Palacio with Erica S. Perl

GRADES: 6-8; THEMES: Rescue, Hiding, Choice, Resistance

This novelization of a best-selling graphic novel of the same name tells the story of Sara Blum, a fictional Jewish girl. She experiences antisemitism in school, but the danger worsens in November 1942, when Germans occupy her town in France. She is forced to separate from her parents and go into hiding with the aid of her classmate Julien, who had been an outsider at school. Together, they create an imaginary world to cope with the danger they are both facing. The novel flashes forward and backward as elderly Sara shares her experiences with her grandchild.

The Devil's Arithmetic by Jane Yolen

GRADES: 6-9; THEMES: Pre-war Jewish life, Ghettos, Concentration Camps

This novel is the story of a teenage Jewish girl, Hannah, who, while bored at a long family seder, travels through time. She finds herself in her ancestors’ hometown, which seems to have been a small town in Eastern Europe, right before the German occupation of the area around 1941. She meets her relatives and, like them, is rounded up and sent to a concentration camp, which is unidentified and fictionalized in the novel but based on Auschwitz. Hannah eventually reemerges in the present with a newfound appreciation for her own Judaism and for the bravery of her relatives.

Daniel’s Story by Carol Matas

GRADES: 4-7; THEMES: Pre-war Jewish life, Antisemitism, Propaganda, Ghettos, Concentration Camps, Liberation

In this novel, based on the “Remember the Children: Daniel’s Story” exhibition at the US Holocaust Memorial Museum, Daniel is a fictional German Jewish boy who experiences Nazi persecution. He remembers his childhood and experiences of Nazi persecution beginning in 1933. The family is forced from their home and deported to the Łódź ghetto in German-occupied Poland. They are eventually sent to Auschwitz. Daniel and his father survive the Holocaust, and Daniel emerges determined to remember all that he has survived and with hope for a new future.

Maus by Art Spiegelman

GRADES: 8-12; THEMES: Pre-war Jewish life, Antisemitism, Ghettos, Concentration Camp, Liberation, Collaboration, Liberation

This graphic novel, in two volumes, includes the dual narratives of the relationship between Art Spiegelman (the author) and his elderly father Vladek, and the Holocaust experiences of Vladek in German-occupied Poland during the Holocaust. The first volume includes the German invasion of Poland, life in ghettos and in hiding, and Vladek’s deportation to Auschwitz. The second volume includes Vladek’s experiences in Auschwitz and his liberation. The graphic novel uses animals to represent people, with Jews—including Art and Vladek—as mice and Germans as cats.

Teacher note: The first volume of the graphic novel includes the suicide of Art’s mother, Anja.
The Tower of Life: How Yaffa Eliach Rebuilt Her Town in Stories and Photographs
by Chana Stiefel and Susan Gal

GRADES: 2-5; THEMES: Pre-war Jewish life, Hiding

This picture book describes the experiences of Yaffa, a girl living in Eyshishok, a majority Jewish town in Eastern Europe. After Nazi Germany occupied her small town, many of Yaffa’s family and neighbors were killed, but Yaffa managed to survive. The book shares how Yaffa collected thousands of photographs of her town in order to honor what life had been like before the Holocaust. Yaffa’s photographs became the basis for the “Tower of Faces” installation at the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum.
